

Due to its location in a rich historical, cultural and architectural context, the project caused the design team to pay special attention to the studies of this region. according to the studies conducted in this field, in the central climate of Iran, special attention was paid to the void in the houses, so that first the location of the void was determined and then the mass was placed around the void. the houses had one to several void according to the land area and also the needs of the user, and the way the void were placed in relation to each other had special rules and principles. Accordingly, in the design, void and their placement in the construction area of the project took place.

Villa as a Temple

Void+Mass+Corridor

