AL AIN MUSEUM

The archaeological discoveries found on the Al Ain Museum site present a unique opportunity to communicate the history of human settlement in Al Ain and the region over the last 2000 years. These remnants reveal the rich heritage of this region. Each of these layers of history have their distinct significance and relevance to the site and to the people of Al Ain. They are as follows: the Archaeology, the Al Ain Oasis, the Sultan Fort, and the Existing Museum. By responding to the existing elements on site, there is an opportunity for the architecture to create a dialogue between the new and the old. By honoring the site's memory, the architecture captures the spirit of place creating meaning and adding a new chapter for the Al Ain Museum to be narrated to the generations to come.
