

The playground provides a space for enhancing communication among individuals from diverse cultural, demographic, and economic backgrounds. Therefore, the initial geometry of the design is a reflection of the circulation paths between the buildings. Another key concept in the design process was to enhance the motor skills of children who may not have the opportunity to develop such skills in small apartments, as supported by academic data. In other words, the main theme of the design was to create a sensory and movement experience inspired by natural environments such as the sea, mountains, and forests.
